The "Great American Experiment" is in peril

BY STEVE CORBIN, EMERITUS PROFESSOR OF MARKETING UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA

My parents (Norma, 1904-2000 and Lester, 1909-2000) were white, Evangelical Christians, blue-collar workers, high school graduates and Republican. Their profile resembles the current GOP base. However, the 1801 British idiom, "turn over in the grave," would apply to my parents if they knew how their beloved party-of-choice has Historians are already noting the most telling development of the GÓP occurred Aug. 24-27, 2020 when the Republican National Convention convened without presenting a party platform. Trump-not policy, principles, values or beliefs-be-

According to a recent NBC News poll, 44 percent of Republicans support Donald Trump more than they support the GOP principles (April 17-20). My high school and college government teachers were in accordance with my parents by stressing that when a political party embraces personality over policy, they can no longer represent "We The People."

Hundreds of U.S. Republican Senators and Representatives behave as if they are afraid of Trump's retaliation should they speak out against King Donald. They have also refused to investigate the Jan. 6 Capitol insurrection in fear that some of their peers may have corroborated with white supremacy groups. The GOP has lost its integrity. I can feel the earth turning at the Nevada, Iowa municipal cemetery.

It is well documented and even accepted by the GOP faithful that Trump, via an analysis by 27 psychiatrists and mental health experts, is a narcissist. As such, Republicans with a modicum of intelligence should know that narcissistic people advance their own popularity and power over everything else, including their party and our country. Trumpism has evolved into a cult and it appears the party is satisfied with that character-

While I was raised in a predominantly white community, I was fortunate to have parents who embraced immigration (98.3 percent of Americans are descendent of immigrants) and valued racial diversity. They would be appalled to read Leonard Pitts, Jr.'s Miami Herald article about the change of GOP: "Trump supporters fear a black and brown America" (May 25, 2018).

Thomas Patterson, a Harvard political scientist, argues in his book (Is the Republican Party destroying itself?) the GOP has drifted from conservative to reactionary politics, relies on rightwing media, supports tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans and exudes an increasing disdain for democratic institutions.

Patterson claims "to a remarkable degree, the history of political partisanship and the trajectory of American parties has been bound up with the history of race in this country. If your base is 90 percent white and you're losing Asian-Americans by two to one, the Black vote by nine to one, and the Hispanics by two to one, voter suppression becomes the only viable strategic option.

Regarding new voter suppression laws in Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Montana and Texas, 199 scholars of democracy have issued a statement of concern noting "our entire democracy is now at risk" with these antidemocracy voting laws (New America, June 1). Fellow Iowans: are you listening?

Jennifer Horn, the former chair of the New Hampshire Republican Party, told Jelani Cobb, a reporter for The New Yorker, the current GOPdirected voter suppression incarnation is "the most open embrace of an anti-democracy movement that we have seen in our country in a very long time" (March 8).

Edward Lempinen's interviews with political science scholars suggest the GOP's rejection of democracy is a story of "complex interplay of class and racial antagonism, aggravated by despair and social drift" (Berkeley News, Dec. 7, 2020).

For many Republicans, authoritarianism supersedes democracy and Trump's "American carnage" 2017 presidential inaugural speech still resonates today. Where is Iowa and America's GOP-preferred authoritarian ecosystem heading?

Alarming times are before us in our 245th year (circa 1776) of the Great American Experiment . . .

My Jam

While summer is typically the time for songs about partying, hot weather and hot people, and living it up, the current jam of much of the younger generation certainly does not fit that mold and in the absolute best way.

Bo Burnham's album/show "What," was at the height of popularity during my early years of college. In his songs, he criticized our skewed views and morals in regards to religion, inner conflict, battling helplessness, the potential pitfalls of pop culture, and other topics that resonated with others of his generation . . . my generation. His new show 'Inside" goes even deeper (no pun intended), and strikes some seriously sobering chords that once again, echo the thoughts, worries, and battles (both personal and worldly) of the younger generations.

One song (with two parts), in particular, has been interpreted in the most ironic of ways by billionaires such as Mark Zuckerberg. The song is simply called "Bezos" and is a not-sosubtle stab at capitalism, hoarding of wealth, and billionaire culture (to use the term loosely) in general. So, to see billionaires and even stock market channels play it unironically as a point of pride/propaganda is . . . admittedly funny, but mostly frustrating.

Marissa

Gasper

Gasper's

Gabble

Because . . . the whole point . . . is clearly being missed.

Not surprising, but . . . UGH.

The topic of mental illness, however, is probably one of the most prevalent and relatable in Bo's songs . . . or, at least that's true for me. The other issues he performs about, contribute to the helplessness that is already present with certain mental illnesses. And the past year, while difficult for everyone, has hit those who battle with these illnesses in a profound way.

And Bo's songs make us realize . . . hey, we're not alone. Even though we've been alone, in our homes, hiding from the world, trying to stay safe and healthy, struggling to be happy . . .

There are others out there who understand. COVID, climate change, capitalism, the planet being ravaged from seemingly every angle . . . tt's been rough. And it's not letting up any time soon, the way things are playing out. But at least we've got music.

And the comfort that comes with mutual understanding. We may not be vibing to the carefree classics of summer, but we're vibing . . . And it feels powerful, in its own way.

We're aware. We're conscious.

We're not alone.

One way or another, we'll get through this. Even if we have to claw our way out.

> "You say the ocean's rising Like I give a s---You say the whole world's ending Honey, it already did You're not going to slow it Heaven knows you tried Got it? Good. Now get inside." —Bo Burnham, "All Eyes On Me" to work in my Senate office to serve as a community outreach officer for Iowa veterans. The Veterans Fellow serves as a liaison to help Iowa veterans reconnect in their communities, such as obtaining health care services, housing and employment or accessing community supports that empower returning military members to thrive and lead meaningful, productive lives after their service ends. The Veterans Fellow is based out of my Des Moines or Cedar Rapids offices. The Fellow serves as an ambassador with the veteran community in Iowa and connects with veterans, veterans' service organizations, veterans' health care providers, and other organizations serving the veteran community across Iowa.

Q&A: Veterans Fellow

With U.S. Senator Chuck Grassley

Q: What is your Veterans Fellow program?

The Fellow also helps my Senate office obtain and record Iowa veterans' stories for the Veterans History Project organized by the Library of Congress. The Fellow may represent my office at local events honoring or serving veterans and participate in welcome home and deployment ceremonies for members of the Iowa National Guard. The Fellow also may connect Iowa veterans encountering specific problems involving a federal agency with my constituent service specialists to help

Q: Why did you create a Veterans Fellow position in your office?

A: Our system of representative government gives the people a say at the policymaking tables through their elected officials. From the local school board to the state legislature and Congress, Iowans decide who will shape public policy on their behalf and write laws impacting education, health care, taxes, safe streets, national security and more. As Iowa's senior U.S. Senator, I work tirelessly to keep in touch with Iowans to know what's on their minds and help solve problems affecting opportunities to get ahead and stay ahead. Holding Q&A's with Iowans in every county, at least once a year is one way I keep up with what's happening in every corner of the state. My six state offices in Cedar Rapids, Council Bluffs, Davenport, Des Moines, Sioux City and Waterloo provide Iowans another opportunity to contact for assistance or to share their views. Each of these offices has a Regional Director who schedules Listening Posts in local communities to give residents another way to share concerns and seek help dealing with a federal agency. Several years ago, I expanded my efforts to touch base with our veteran community in Iowa with creation of the Veterans Fellow program. I strive to keep A: This program invites a military veteran in tune with the challenges returning members of the military encounter when they reintegrate into civilian life. Having a Veterans Fellow on board reinforces my legislative efforts in the U.S. Senate on behalf of veterans, such as improving accountability by the Department of Veterans Affairs, expanding suicide prevention and accessing appropriate medical benefits, including for those discharged with PTSD or Traumatic Brain Injury. A veteran who has had boots on the ground in service to our nation can hit the ground running with their experience and expertise to help me make sure the federal government fulfills its promises to the men and women who have served in uniform. In fact, my legislative policy advisor handling veterans issues on Capitol Hill returned to my Senate staff following her deployment in Qatar with the Iowa Army National Guard.

Q: How can interested Iowans apply for this

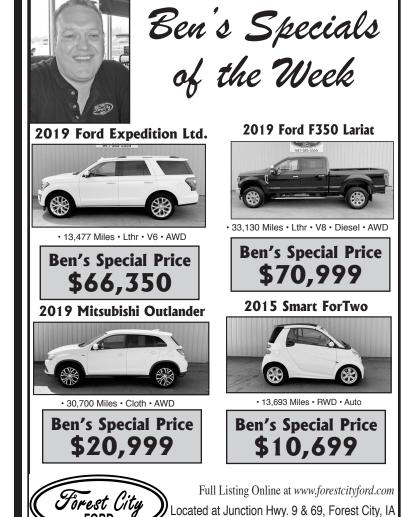

A: My Senate office is taking applications for this competitive position. Interested applicants must be a U.S. military veteran. Home base will be my Des Moines or Cedar Rapids office, although the majority of work is conducted out in the community. Applicants need to be able to drive their own vehicle to meetings and appointments. Evening and weekend work is required. Stipend and mileage reimbursement is provided for this parttime position with flexible office hours. Public speaking skills are desired. It goes without saying that candidates must be positive and passionate about serving veterans. Having a Veteran Fellow embedded in my Senate office gives Iowa veterans another advocate to help identify unmet needs and unspoken challenges they face on a daily basis. The Fellow serves as another set of eyes and ears on the ground to strengthen the process of representative government. Consider a testimonial from Dave Allen, my most recent Veterans Fellow who was an invaluable asset to the veteran community in Iowa, "This fellowship program makes the adage come true every day on the job. 'You get out what you put in.' It's been the honor of a lifetime to serve my fellow veterans of all ages and branches of the U.S. military." The fellowship term is generally for six months, with opportunity for renewal.

Interested candidates for the Veterans Fellow program may contact Senator Grassley's office in Des Moines for more information at 515-288-1145

The young ladies of Mrs. Bobo's class of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School at Lake Mills held a very successful market on Saturday at te Union Department Store. At the close of the day, they visited the neighboring furniture store and selected half a dozen dining room chairs which they donated to the parsonage. The folk at the parsonage were greatly delighted by the thoughtful gift and much appreciate the work of this progressive class.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hylbak and son Harley were up from Perry, Iowa, for a few days, called here by the illness of Grandma Thoe. Mr. Hylbak is enjoying good business at Perry and is very enthusiastic about the prospects for the future. He has some live wire stories to tell about the boosting spirit in Perry.

John Overmeyer met with a serious injury Wednesday afternoon while working at having on his farm northeast of town. In some manner, he fell backward against pitchfork, the handle of which entered his body below the stomach and ran upward nearly eighteen inches, stopping just below the liver. He was at once brought to town, and Dr. Henderson, accompanied by H.J. Lund, took him to the Naeve Hospital at Albert Lea, where the doctors performed an operation that night. Strange to say, they found no serious internal injury to the bowels, and the patient's chances of recovery are considered good.

From a Winnebago county farm, to a northern Minnesota summer resort is the change made by Mr. and Mrs. Olvin Nelson and family. Formerly farmers near Vinje, they now operate a 10-cottage summer resort six miles north of Walker, Minn., known as Long Bow resort on Leech Lake. Members of the family are taking a liking to their new work and are finding the summer season most enjoyable at the lakeside, in spite of the numerous duties which fall to every member of the household as tourists arrive for accomodations. After more than 50 years of operation as a farmers' creamery and as a co-operative concern in recent years, the Tenold creamery has been sold to the Carnation Milk Company, which took over the property on the first of the month. Local management of the concern will be in the hands of Clifford Tenold and the plant will continue to buy cream and manufacture butter a in the past, it is understood.

Blimp passes thru Lake Mills

Area citizens watched as a blimp passed through the Lake Mills area. Nearly 200 feet in length and 50 feet in diameter, the large sausage-shaped balloon dwarfs the cabin which may be seen on the underside. The craft was flying so low, that it had to raise to clear the trees at Rice Lake, according to witnesses. As it approached town, however, it gained more altitude and probably was about 500 feet when this photo was taken.

Softball vs Manson Northwest Webster

The season ended for the LMHS softball team last Monday, July 5, as the Bulldogs were defeated 6-10 by the Manson Northwest Webster Cougars in the regional opener.

"We left way too many runners on base tonight," commented Head Coach Bill Byrnes. "It was a disappointing game to end the season, but our body of work this year was about improvement. The team did a great job of getting better this sea-

Dale Larson grant gets Food Bank of Iowa back on the road

In January 2021, Dale Larson donated $30 million to Feeding America. The funds were distributed to several Feeding America food banks, including Food Bank of Iowa, which serve communities where Larson Manufacturing has factories. Food Bank of Iowa serves one such community in Lake Mills, located in Winnebago County. Now, Food Bank of Iowa is utilizing the funds to get staff back on the road to complete essential work.

Due to Dale Larson's generosity, Food Bank of Iowa recently took possession of three 2021 Hyundai Kona vehicles. These small SUVs will allow Food Bank of Iowa employees to safely, efficiently and cost-effectively support the success of food pantries, schools and meal sites that feed Iowa neighbors in need.

To get much-needed nutrition to 375,000 Iowans across 55 Iowa counties, Food Bank of Iowa partners with community-based organizations. Each Food Bank of Iowa partner is assigned a Regional Partnership Coordinator. In their work, coordinators focus on hunger at the local level—digging deep to understand the unique needs of each Iowa community, removing barriers to ensure partner success and keeping food safety top of mind.

"We are grateful for Dale Larson's generosity. Our committed and passionate Regional Partnership Coordinators will drive thousands of miles this year to support the success of our local partners," said Michelle Book, CEO of Food Bank of Iowa. "Success is dinner on the table for every Iowa family.'

During COVID-19, coordinators were forced to perform their work virtually. Now, fully vaccinated Food Bank of Iowa Regional Partnership coordinators are excited to visit partners in person. The Dale Larson vehicles have gotten the Food Bank of Iowa team back on the road, fighting food insecurity across Iowa.

"Lost in the Move"

I'm not sure when a house becomes a home, but I don't think we're quite there yet.

My husband, Peter, and I have moved into the new place. All our stuff is here, but that doesn't mean we know where anything

"Have you seen the strainer?" "Which strainer?"

"You know, the fine one." "No."

We have about two dozen conversations like this every day. We got rid of a lot of stuff and now it's hard to remember what we kept. Then I unpacked by myself, so Peter had to go on a scavenger hunt when he got here. Finally, we had the "lastminute essentials" we brought with us, and we're still unpacking those. It's a jumble. Peter was convinced (unreasonably, I assured him) that every T-shirt he owned had mysteriously been

Laborshed study to be conducted

Winn-Worth Betco is partnering with Iowa Workforce Development and Iowa Economic Development Authority to complete a Laborshed employment study for Winnebago and Worth counties. This study will geographically define which communities contribute to the workforce, regardless of political boundaries. This defined area is called a Laborshed area and is based upon commuting patterns.

The purpose of this Laborshed study is to measure the availability and characteristics of the area workers. Laborshed studies are useful tools for economic development teams and existing or prospective employers to understand the local labor market, make informed expansion and site selection decisions, and maintain/recruit a high-quality workforce.

The Laborshed boundary is based on the place of residence of individuals commuting into the two-county area for employment. For the success of this study, we will be sending letters to employers in asking that they provide us with aggregate counts of their employees' residential ZIP codes. This reporting will give us an understanding of where each community's workforce resides. Every year Iowa Workforce Development conducts Laborshed studies across the State. The results of each analysis are publicly available online at www.iowalmi.gov/laborshed. If you have any questions about the Laborshed project, please contact Katie Lippold at 515-281-

"I found them!" I heard him yell from the bedroom. "Mystery solved!"

I am realizing how much I do do, I notice something else in a drawer where it shouldn't be and I move it. Suddenly, I find I am standing in the middle of the kitchen with no idea what I'm doing there.

"The soap dispenser!" I remind myself. I end up using the bar of soap in the bathtub.

Then there are all the things we need contractors to do. Nobody is excited about renovating an old condominium when there is so much new construction going on, so my day is spent wheedling contractors to come over. We need electrical fixtures installed, we need the flooring repaired where a bump has developed, and we'd like to replace the old yellow bathtub. Since I am better at wheedling than Peter, I make these calls. I have particular success if the contractor is married and I can wheedle his wife. I did that this morning and got the electrician, George, to come out in less than an hour.

It was a busy morning. In addition to George, a self-described "handyman" named Steve visited. Steve the handyman turned out to be quite handy and will be helping us out. George the electrician, however, turned out not to be an actual electrician, which was disappointing—especially after I had had such a friendly chat with his wife. Not to mention his card said "electrical contractor" across the top.

"Nope," George said. "I can't do that." Oh well.

Meanwhile our little balcony (which is the best part of the whole place) is closed off for painting and maintenance.

"How much maintenance can a balcony take?" I asked Peter. Apparently quite a lot, as they have scaffolding running up the building and yellow ribbon running across the balcony like the scene of a crime.

"Don't worry," Peter says. "It will all get done."

And, of course, he is right. We will get rid of the bump in the floor (which seems to be growing) and we will get to enjoy our balcony and we will have our electrical fixtures installed by someone who is actually an electrician. But for now, I am looking forlornly out at the forbidden balcony and wondering when this will feel like home.

We showed George the bathtub, and he said he could replace it. I think my next call will be to a plumber to see if he'd like to install some lighting fixtures.

New USDA grant funds available for rural communities

BY NATHAN BEACOM, SENIOR POLICY ASSOCIATE

CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

This summer, the Department of Agriculture (USDA) has begun accepting applications for two important programs for rural development.

The first is the Rural Placemaking Innovation Challenge (RPIC), which has seen a $2 million increase in funding after its initial set of grants met with a great deal of enthusiasm. This program is available to tribal entities, non-profits, local governments, universities, and small businesses for the purpose of rural placemaking, which is a collaborative process to strategically improve the social, cultural, and economic structure of a community.

The second program, the Rural Innovation Stronger Economy (RISE) grant, is available to nonprofit organizations, universities, tribal entities, and state and local governments. The goal is to support the growth of high-wage jobs through encouraging new business incubation, a high-skilled workforce, and opportunities for highpaying jobs. The grants can be from $500,000 to $2 million.

The Center has talked extensively with last year's RPIC recipients, and they could not have been more positive about the program. It's important for rural communities to strengthen the historical, natural or cultural assets that make them unique, attractive places to live. This draws investment and vitality to the community. Likewise, the RISE program is designed to attract skilled workers and positions to rural areas This is crucial as the rural economy changes.

Ultimately, these two programs go hand in hand in developing resilient rural communities. We encourage qualifying parties to visit the usda.gov to apply.

Iowa crop and weather report

Much needed rainfall limited farmers to 4.2 days suitable for fieldwork during the week ending July 11, 2021, according to the USDA, National Agricultural Statistics Service. There were scattered reports of crops lying flat due to strong winds and hail. Field activities included hauling grain, applying fungicides and harvesting hay and oats.

Topsoil moisture levels rated nine percent very short, 31 percent short, 56 percent adequate and fourpercent surplus. Subsoil moisture levels rated 16 percent very short, 40 percent short, 42 percent adequate and two percent surplus. Districts in northwest Iowa reported subsoil moisture conditions as 78 percent percent short to very short while subsoil levels in southeast Iowa rated 87 percent adequate to surplus.

path brought much-needed precipitation statewide over the reporting period, along with a few days of severe weather. A majority of the state's reporting stations observed above-average rainfall with parts of southern Iowa measuring amounts from one to three inches above average. With clouds and rain present, temperatures were generally seasonal with cooler conditions in the west; the statewide average temperature was 71.8 degrees, 2.6 degrees below normal. Clear skies and southerly winds greeted Iowans through Sunday (4th) afternoon as daytime highs ranged from the low to mid 90s north to mid 80s southeast. After Independence Day fireworks fizzled out during the early morning hours, a narrow line of thunderstorms pushed into north-central Iowa, dissipating by sunrise as morning temperatures dropped into the low 70s. A handful of stations reported rain with Northwood (Worth County) measuring 0.70 inch.

Monday (5th) was another warm and muggy day as upper 80s and low 90s were recorded across Iowa; the statewide average high was 90 degrees, seven degrees above nor-

A thin line of strong thunderstorms with locally heavy downpours formed across extreme northern Iowa later in the evening before dying out very early on Tuesday (6th) morning. Sioux City (Woodbury County) reported 0.01 inch while Sanborn (O'Brien County) observed 0.85 inch. The first of multiple low pressure systems began moving through Iowa during the day, bringing sporadic thunderstorm activity over Iowa's northern third.

The low's attendant cold front swept across the state overnight into Wednesday (8th) providing widespread and locally heavy rain in western Iowa. Over 20 stations reported an inch or more with Manning (Carroll County) observing 2.47 inches. The front continued through Iowa before exiting the eastern border before midnight. Overnight lows were cooler behind the front, from the mid 50s northwest to mid 60s southeast.

Rain totals reported at 7 a.m., Thursday (8th), highlighted several pockets of 0.50 inch and more in southern and eastern Iowa with general totals of a few tenths at other 1.89 inches while the normal is 0.79 stations; Centerville (Appanoose County) and Osceola (Clarke County) both measured totals above two inches. Another disturbance brought severe thunderstorms to northwestern Iowa around midnight with scattered hail reports. Heavy rainfall was also observed in the stronger cells; a small sliver of stations from Plymouth to Carroll

A welcome shift in the storm counties observed totals above 1.50 inches; Remsen (Plymouth County) dumped out 2.01 inches. Widespread totals in the state's western half ranged from 0.25 inch to an inch with a statewide average of 0.32 inch.

> Showers and thunderstorms continued across central Iowa into Friday (9th) morning, as a potent low pressure system approached southwestern Iowa. A severewarned discrete supercell thunderstorm fired over Webster County and raced southeast through the Des Moines (Polk County) metro area, before dissipating in south-central Iowa. The cell produced golf to tennis ball-size hail from Woodward (Dallas County) to Carlisle (Warren County), shredding tree leaves, snapping corn stalks and defoliating soybean fields along a 70-mile path; Woodward reported threeinch hailstones while an observer in Beaverdale (Polk County) collected 3.25-inch hail. Additional waves of strong and severe thunderstorms formed throughout the evening in southeastern Iowa and then later in the night over western Iowa, persisting across much of Iowa's southern half into late Saturday (10th) morning.

> Rain totals from the previous 48-hours were highest in southern Iowa with local amounts of 2.00 to 4.00 inches: Chariton (Lucas County) observed 4.13 inches. Iowa's northern half saw a gradient from a few tenths of an inch to more than an inch farther south; the statewide average total was 0.91 inch.

> As the strong disturbance pushed east, rainfall continued through the day as storms refired in western Iowa, with a stronger line of storms moving into central Iowa during the evening. Stubborn showers sat over southeastern Iowa as the system slowly moved out on Sunday (11th) morning. As with the last several days, beneficial rains were poured out of gauges across much of western, central and southeastern Iowa, generally between 0.25 inch to 1.25 inches. Slow-moving storms in Lyon and Sioux counties brought localized totals above 2.50 inches over 24 hours.

> Weekly precipitation totals ranged from 0.14 inch at Waterloo Municipal Airport (Black Hawk County) to 4.80 inches in Adair (Adair County). The statewide weekly average precipitation was > Rock Rapids (Lyon County) observed the week's high temperature of 97 degrees on July 5, 12 degrees above normal. Estherville Municipal Airport (Emmet County) reported the week's low temperature of 48 degrees on July 8, 12 degrees below normal.

Main Street Nutrition promotes healthy eating

BY BONNIE KAY BALDWIN LAKE MILLS GRAPHIC

Are you looking for a quick breakfast or lunch on weekdays? Something fast, yet healthy and delicious? Maybe you didn't take the time at home to provide yourself with breakfast or lunch?

Perhaps now, there is an answer to your dilemma. Try visiting the new business that just recently opened in Lake Mills—Main Street Nutrition.

Owner, Alicia Schumaker, Albert Lea, has opened a store in the front of Dr. Korthal's building—213 Main Street. Hours are Monday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; some pop up hours, and a random Saturday, here and

The grand opening of this store was held Saturday, June 19, along with the ribbon cutting. Schumaker also has a store in Albert Lea, Minn., and her business promotes healthy eating and nutrition, and serves meal replacement beverages. The product is called Herbal Life.

"It's a fun concept—a nutrition club. Herbal Life has been around about 43 years; the nutrition club idea, maybe the last 15-20 years," commented Schumaker. "I have been in it for nine years. I first got into a nutrition group in Mankato; then Albert Lea; co-owned that business; and now, owning it myself and opening this one."

Schumaker said that they provide other services as well, customizing meal plans, building a health community, and other fun challenges and worthwhile events.

"The menu for our meal replacement beverages is pretty simple ... we have our: teas—basic, energy and energy plus; our shakes—basic, blizzerts, lava, crowd favorites, and coffee-based frappes; and a kid's menu. Kid's are always welcome," Schumaker stated.

Schumaker's husband, Zack, was instrumental in getting the tables, chairs, and painting, etc. done to help Alicia get her new business ready, for its grand opening. The Schumakers have two children; Brekken, 4 and Aviana, 2.

row the Bulldog lead to just a single run. However, the defense was able to stave off extra innings, and the game ended in a 15-14 victory for Lake Mills.

Dalton Thorson was the starting pitcher for the Bulldogs, striking out one batter while giving up three hits and nine runs. Eli Menke came on the mound to relieve Thorson, racking up four strikeouts while allowing two hits and four runs. Jack Ramaker finished the game for Lake Mills, allowing just four hits and a single run. Menke was credited with the win on the mound.

As a team Lake Mills got 14 hits and 11 RBIs during the game. Casey Hanson had yet another home run during this game, as well as two singles and four RBIs. Hayden Brua and Dalton Thorson each singled twice and got two RBIs apiece, while AJ Ramaker singled twice and got a single RBI. Wyatt Helming hit a double and got one RBI, while Joe Young and Eli Menke each singled once during the game.

Baseball vs ELC

The LMHS baseball team was soundly defeated by EsthervilleLincoln-Central last Thursday, July 8. The game was over quickly, as the Bulldogs were shut out 0-20 in five innings.

The Lake Mills offense was unable to put runs on the board, while the defense gave up runs to their opponents in nearly every inning, capped off by a decisive 11 runs put up by Estherville in the top of the fifth to end the game early.

Jack Ramaker was the starting pitcher for the Bulldogs, and had a rough go of it on the mound; Ramaker gave up 10 hits and 11 runs while committing 11 errors and getting no strikeouts. Hayden Brua came on to relieve Ramaker, and didn't fare much better, as he gave up nine runs on just a single hit due to nine errors and a number of walks. Ramaker was credited with the loss on the mound.

The bats were quiet for the Bulldogs, as they were only able to put up a total of three singles as a team. Casey Hanson, Garrett Ham, and Hayden Helgeson were the only batters to single during the game.

Lake Mills' season record dropped to 9-15 with this loss.

The Izaak Walton League over the Midwest. clubhouse was the site of a recent meeting between 45 concerned Rice Lake outdoor enthusiasts and the Iowa Dept. of Natural Reesources. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss possibilities of controlling an over abundance of underwater plants that are covering Rice Lake, June through August.

Representatives at the meeting from the Iowa DNR were Scott Grummer, fisheries biologist and TJ Herrik, wildlife biologist. These gentlemen gave a brief history of Rice Lake management and then a summary of the last seven years since the lake was restored. They credit the excessive amount of submergent plants that have choked out boating and fishing activities to mild winters and an invasive species of plant called curly pond weed. This scenario is causing similar problems in shallow lakes all

The 2013 restoration plan was to eliminate bullheads, provide clear water, and improve fishing and wetland plant growth—all a vital part of that plan. Also, they were told that there would always be a couple hundred acres of boatable water. All of the original predictions have been accurate, except for the couple hundred acres of open water.

As a result, lake users want a solution to the problem and want to work with the DNR toward that goal.

Scott Grummer proposed the possibility of doing some chemical treatment to a portion of the lake. There are chemicals available that are effective and are approved for use in state lakes. The DNR has limited funds, but offered the possiblity of a 65-70 percent cost share in treating part of the lake.

The DNR requested that locally, a lake association should be formed to raise money for the project, with treatment in the spring of 2022. This organization would be able to provide better communication with the DNR managers on many issues concerning the management of Rice

As a result, an organization is being formed. This group plans to have a broad base of support from those outdoor enthusiasts who want improvements that will make the lake more attractive to boaters, fisherman, hunters, sightseers, bird watchers,

The chairman of the new organization, "Friends of Rice Lake," is Paul Tenold.

"Initial efforts will be to get a non-profit designation and then to write grants, hold a membership drive, and raise funds to improve Rice Lake for everyone," commented Tenold.

Enjoy all the new events at the Winnebago Co. fair

This year's Winnebago Co Fair is shaping up to be a fair with a lot of "firsts," commented fair manager, Darla Thompson. "There is a lot of excitement because of all the changes." The pandemic put a stop to the 2020 Winnebago Co Fair except for the livestock shows. "Many new and fun events have been arranged and we invite your family to come and enjoy your time at the fair," continued Thompson.

There will be a carnival this year as there were many who inquired about wanting one. The carnival is hosted by Next Generation Show and is Iowa-based. Tickets are available at Main Street Market in Buffalo Center, TSB Bank and Hometown Market in Thompson, along with several other businesses, and at the fair.

Grandstand Shows include the Johnny Holmes Band on Thursday night with opening act by Brothers Walker. Friday's entertainment will be an encore performance by Brothers Walker, and local musical Morgan (Kahler) Kuecker. Saturday evening's entertainment will be the Demolition Derby. New this year for Sunday's events will be the Monster Truck Racing League beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Another new event will be at the Grandstand on Friday is Knockerball, also known as bubble soccer. It features an arena and players wearing large inflatable balls. Also Critter Close-ups from Omaha will be at the fair. See these live exotic animals who will make your day. On Saturday, there will be a new axe throwing booth from 5-10 p.m. Also, WCTA will host a sanctioned pedal pull and the Woyle Carving Niche, featuring chainsaw artist, Pat Doyle, will be performing. These events are all free to the public. Sunday events include a horse show, Zoops balloon art, show and workshop, parade, and Yeira Police dog demomonstrations. The 4H and FFA livestock show will all return including working exhibits, education presentations and Share the Fun. Other regular events will once again return as in past years, such as the open garden and open craft shows. The Winnebago County Fair Queen and Little Miss pageants return for the first day of the fair. These events will be held at the new shelterhouse, which has been built around the open stage

Hungry at the fair? "We have arranged for many new food vendors this year," said Thompson. There will be food options such as Mexican foods, pizza by the slice, BBQ, Boy Scout and Lions Clubs booths, and the carnival offering such things as funnel cakes, popcorn, ice cream treats and handsqueezed lemonade. There will also be vendors in the commercial build-

The Winnebago Co. Fair parade will be held Sunday, July 18, starting at 1:30 p.m. To be included in the fair, simply show up between 11:45 a.m.-12:30 p.m. by the Thompson City Park, which is near the city pool area.

Enjoy the parade and afterwards, enjoy a free burger feed sponsored by the Winnebago Co Farm Bureau and free watermelon provided by Farmers Trust and Savings Bank. For more information about the parade, contact Lynn Hagenson at 641-584-2937.
