Pilot Knob State Park unique to Iowa

BY KAYLEE SCHUERMANN
WINN-WORTH BETCO

In the early 1920s, Forest City natives banded together to memorialize a local forest area later named Pilot Knob State Park.

Pilot Knob State Park has become a place for locals and travelers to enjoy a day in nature, providing opportunities for visitors to hike, camp, fish, sled, ski, skate and more. Due to its proximity to Winnebago Industries, the park even sees visitors from across the country and the world.

In 1934, the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) became active in the Forest City area. They quickly got to work building several of the park's best-known features, including the stone shelters and bridges, observation tower and amphitheater.

"It provides kind of a window to the past . . ." said Pilot Knob State Park park ranger Michael Strauser. "It allows people the opportunity to connect to the land."

Pilot Knob State Park is unique to Iowa, as it contains various wildlife and plant life that can only be found at the park. According to Strauser, the observation tower and amphitheater were the only of their kind made by the CCC in Iowa. The natural characteristics of Dead Man's Lake also make it one-of-a-kind to Iowa.

Park visitors can enjoy a drive through the park and 11 trails containing about nine miles of soft hiking trails and five miles of equestrian trails.

While at the park, visitors will also have the opportunity to see common animals who have made a home in the park, like woodpeckers, whitetail deer, turkeys and tree frogs. One may even come across goats placed in a controlled area to help manage the spread of buckthorn and honeysuckle.

"I think it's a hidden gem in Iowa, and not a lot of people know about it," said Dawn Bill, president of Friends of Pilot Knob. "I think that also makes it unique. The way there are rolling hills in the middle of farmland, to me, is absolutely beautiful."

Friends of Pilot Knob is a non-profit group dedicated to enhancing and improving the condition of the park. They plan many events and fundraisers throughout the year to do so, such as clean-ups, chili cook-offs, bigfoot hunts and other family-fun events.

Pilot Knob State Park is open for reservations to the campsite, shelters, warming house and amphitheater. These locations are often reserved for birthdays, family reunions, weddings and other celebrations.

Both Strauser and Bill remind visitors that while the park will be off-limits to cars and other large vehicles, the park is still open for anyone wishing to enjoy the winter sites and activities.

"I would say to the people who love it (Pilot Knob State Park) to come out and be a part and make a difference," said Bill. "Be a part of the friends group to promote and enhance, so future generations can enjoy it too."

Volunteers spruce up Thorpe Park

Employees from the Part Sales Dept. at Winnebago Industries worked hard earlier this month to spruce up Thorpe Park. They cleared an area below the cabin renters and other park visitors have a much better view of Lake Catherine.

Rural communities could benefit from water, broadband infrastructure funding

BY JOHNATHAN HLADIK,
POLICY DIRECTOR
CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

The newly-passed infrastructure package approved by Congress last week promises to reach every corner of the country, and for rural America, funding for water and sewer, broadband internet, and electrical projects could have the most impact.

A $11.7 billion annual increase for the Clean Water and Drinking Water State Revolving Funds will assist small towns in making much-needed drinking water and sewage system upgrades. The federal-state partnership provides low-interest loans to eligible communities to improve their drinking water supply, build wastewater facilities, or fund other necessary water quality projects.

With internet access becoming a critical component of everyday life, the package also includes $48.2 billion in broadband funding appropriated to the National Telecommunications and Information Administration. The funding will be used to help lower the price households pay for internet service by requiring federal funding recipients to offer a low-cost affordable plan, by creating price transparency, and by boosting competition in areas where existing providers aren't providing adequate service.

As more communities and utilities look to renewable energy, having a robust transmission system is key to linking those systems to homes and businesses. The infrastructure plan provides a $65 billion investment to rebuild the electric grid, which will make it easier to develop renewable energy in areas now far from a grid connection.

A safe and healthy water system, affordable broadband access, and a reliable electric grid are basic elements we all depend on. As state and federal officials undertake the hard work of developing programs and identifying worthy projects, local leaders can begin to solicit feedback and generate ideas. Communities must have strong infrastructure in place in order to sustain and grow, and we urge everyone to participate in this generational opportunity.

Religious disconnect and political discord in America

STEVE CORBIN,
EMERITUS PROFESSOR OF MARKETING
UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA

In 1564—56 years before the Mayflower set sail—French pilgrims settled at Fort Caroline (near Jacksonville, FL) in search of religious freedom from the Europeans. While the Pilgrims and Puritans arrived in New England in the early 1600's promising no religious belief or political persuasion would separate people from one another, ensuing sermons, fighting and laws proved otherwise (Smithsonian Magazine).

In Massachusetts, only Christians could hold public office. Catholics were banned from holding office in New York. Jews did not have full civil rights in Maryland. Delaware required an oath to Christianity. The mix of religious beliefs and politics continues to this day causing major disconnect. It is well known there is a wide generation gap in American politics: most Millennials, Generation X and Gen. Z favor the Democratic Party while Baby Boomers and the Silent Generation essentially cater to the GOP (Pew Research Center).

As a Baby Boomer who has grandchildren born during the Generation Z era, I think more and more about the young and their future than I do about my elderly peers' destiny. The values of Generation Z, who were born after 1996, may be the best group to focus on to predict the future.

The Springfield Research Institute, a non-partisan non-profit, found "50 percent of people aged 13 to 25 don't think religious institutions care as much as they do about issues that matter deeply to them" (Wall Street Journal, Oct. 26). Issues like racial justice, gender equity, immigration rights, LGBTQ, income inequality and gun control are rarely discussed in institutions of faith and are causing the youth's disconnect from spirituality.

Many would contend these are the same issues that are separating many of the Democratic Party faithful from the die-hard GOP. In the world of politics as well as in centers of faith, we've learned from the Holy Bible out of the mouths of babes—who are honest and innocent—comes truth and wisdom.

A Jan., 2020 Pew Research Center study found that only 22 percent of the 13 to 25 age group approved of former Donald Trump and Republican Party actions, while 77 percent went counter to their peers. Generation Z individuals represents the leading edge of the country's changing racial and ethnic makeup. They are on track to be the best educated generation and 70 percent feel the government should do more to solve problems.

Robert P. Jones, founding CEO of the non-partisan Public Religion Research Institute, while talking about the religious and cultural divide between Democrat and GOP voters, said "if current trends continue . . . Republicans (will) look about like America did back in the mid-1990's, while Democrats (will) look like the country is going to look a decade from now" (CNN Politics, Oct. 22, 2019).

Imagine the reaction of a teenager or a 25 year-old-adult reading an Oct. 25 article in Vice News that states "25 percent of all white evangelical Protestants agree the government, media and financial worlds in the U.S. are controlled by a group of devil-worshipping pedophiles, a key QAnon conspiracy."

Or vision a 13-25 year-old person listening to a faith leader or politician support conspiracy theories, tout disinformation about critical race theory, gay marriage and transgender rights, and claim the Jan. 6 insurrection at the Capitol was proper.

If leaders of organized churches, synagogues, temples and mosques as well as political party leaders wonder why there is division, strife and disconnect from youth to the elderly, they need to look no further than what their respective group is preaching, teaching and embracing.

It's time for both political parties, centers of faith and their respective believers to start healing America; it begins with them.

Our Own Corner of the World

My brother, Tyler, and I—on the rare occasions we're together—often spin hypothetical scenarios about living off-the-grid or being self-sufficient. We grew up on video games like Harvest Moon, in which you inherit a long abandoned family farm and must restore it and make a life for yourself in a small village (making friends, growing crops, raising animals, winning competitions, attending festivals, and even starting a family along the way). So, it's a fantasy that is easy for us to fall into, especially as we grow older and more and more disillusioned with the current world order.

Marissa Gasper
Gasper's Gabble

T: "We could all put money into a plot of land, build our own individual, eco-friendly houses, grow a garden, get a goat or two and some chickens . . . We could make it work."

M: "Can we get a donkey? The donkey could eat the grass."

T: "The goat would eat the grass AND provide milk. A donkey would be a diminishing return."

M: "But they're so cute . . ."

T: "And not practical."

It's true. I am not a practical person. And that would no doubt be a problem in this fantasy.

I would definitely have a lot to learn. Luckily, if my heart is set on something, or I'm forced to put my mind to it, I am a reasonably quick study on most subjects. Unfortunately, despite having the ability and endurance for manual labor, I have never really enjoyed it. And being self-sufficient would, without question, involve a good bit of it each and every day.

I've always wanted to try making soap . . . I could do that for us, maybe. And I love cooking and baking. I could help with that stuff, too. Preserving fruit or making jam or something like that. I'd be willing to attempt gardening, but maybe harvesting would be a better idea. I also love animals, so I'd be down to help with that.

Like I said, a lot would need to be learned for this to come anywhere close to reality.

My natural talents are certainly not geared towards homesteading. I have an affinity for learning languages . . . how would that translate? Talking to the animals? I also have a talent for art, particularly sketching . . . how would that benefit us? I can write well, and have a knack for words . . . Would any of this be of help to me on the road to self-sufficiency?

Maybe . . . But the answers certainly aren't obvious.

While it's a fun fantasy to play out in my mind or in a video game—a comfortable and cozy corner of my brain—I realize that the reality would be much harsher and that my own preferences and lifestyle would be working against me.

Still, it's not an idea I would easily dismiss. The world the way it is, I like to keep my options, and my mind, open.

North Iowa Honor Choir Festival participants

The 2021 North Iowa Honor Choir Festival was held Nov. 8. Lake Mills students in grades 7-12 performed this year's All-State music, along with many other students from schools in the North Iowa area. The highlight of the festival was a grand concert featuring four choirs directed by this year's Opus directors and Clear Lake native guest director, Christopher Phalen. The choirs performed for a sold out crowd in the NIACC gymnasium. Fifth and sixth grade students will participate in their North Iowa Honor Choir festival in March.

Safelowers attempted to gain entrance to the vault of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank of Emmons early Wednesday morning, blowing the combination on the vault with a charge of nitroglycerin, but failing to gain entrance, gave up the job as a bad one and made a clean getaway. Nothing was taken from the bank, the robbers overlooking the money which reposed in an open drawer in the banking room. Evidently the burglars were after the contents of the safety deposit boxes but were foiled in their attempt to blow the door on the vault by the simple device known as the Dillon Lock, which automatically locked bolts in place when the combination was blown. The only loss to the bank was the demolished door, which is covered by the burglar insurance. No clue as to perpetrators.

Lake Mills friends will be interested in the announcement that Anna Ruby is married. She was united in bonds of holy wedlock on Nov. 2, 1921, with Mr. Ted Fowler, an industrious young man who has charge of his father's ranch near Galata, Mont. Miss Ruby went to Montana four years ago and taught school for some time. She is a graduate of the Lake Mills public schools, a young lady of fine character and disposition. She has a wide circle of friends in Lake Mills. We join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

The sheriff at Albert Lea arrested a man last Friday who had stolen 119 pairs of shoes and 1850 cigars from the Milwaukee Depot at that place. The thief was apprehended because he became drunk and in a wild raid one night, spilled several of the shoes in the park. The man is a well known merchant of Geneva, Minn., a small town just north of Albert Lea.

Take out the key, lock the doors, is a pretty good rule to follow when parking your car, as a wave of car thefts is occurring in North Iowa of late. Most recent loss is the 1939 Chevrolet car belonging to Leo Lovik of east of Forest City. It was taken from its parking space near the Forest

Although it might be "fun" to youngsters on Halloween to resort to "tricks and treats," tricks such as this do not get many laughs. The popcorn stand, owned by Tony Turvold's, a longtime landmark on the corner of Mill and Main, was badly damaged when it was tipped over. The youths responsible for this and other vandalism over Halloween weekend have been apprehended.

A two car accident at the corner of Harrison street and First Avenue North Thursday afternoon proved to be a close call for several young people. According to the report from the Police Department, Jane Grotewold was traveling south on Harrison Street when her car was struck on the right side by a car driven by Steven Olson, Scarville. After the collision, the Grotewold car struck a pedestrian, Lynn Sanden, and continued across the lawn hitting the Mrs. Laurene Hylbak home. Neither young Sanden, Miss Grotewold, Olson or three boys riding with him were injured.

A new 28 acre marsh is being created on property located on the southwest side of Rice Lake which was purchased by the Fish and Wildlife Service from the Walter Severson family. The marsh will be managed by the Iowa DNR, with plans to have the marsh completed this fall. The $7,400 cost of construction is being paid for by Ducks Unlimited.

CRANBERRY PEPPER JELLY

2-4 jalapeno peppers, halved and seeded
1-1/2 c. cranberry juice cocktail
1 c. vinegar
5 c. sugar
1/2 of a 6 oz. pkg. (1 foil pouch) liquid fruit pectin

In a medium saucepan, combine jalapeno peppers, cranberry juice cocktail, and vinegar. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Strain mixture through a sieve, pressing the back of a spoon to remove all of the liquid. Measure 2 cups liquid. Discard pulp. In a 4-quart Dutch oven or kettle, combine the 2 cups of strained liquid and the sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil over high heat, stirring constantly. Stir in the pectin. Return to a full rolling boil. Boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Quickly skim off foam with a metal spoon. Immediately ladle jelly into hot, sterilized half-pint canning jars, leaving a 1/4-inch headspace. Wipe jar rims, and adjust lids. Process jars in a boiling water canner for 5-minutes (start timing when the water begins to boil). Remove jars from canner; cool on wire racks. Jelly may require 2-3 days to set. Makes about 5 half-pints.

CRANBERRY SALAD

1 pkg. cranberries, ground

ADD:

1 can crushed pineapple, drained
1-1/4 c. sugar
1 pkg. mini marshmallows
Mix all together, well. Store in refrigerator. Mix in 1 container whipped topping just before serving.

WILD RICE SOUP

4 to 4-1/2 c. chicken broth (reserve a 1/2 cup)
2/3 c. wild rice, rinsed
1/2 c. carrots, chopped small
1/2 c. celery, chopped small
1/2 c. onion, chopped small
1 Tbsp. flour
1/2 tsp. pepper
3 strips bacon
1-1/2 c. half and half
3 Tbsp. butter

Brown chopped vegetables in butter for about 3 minutes. Cook bacon (does not have to be crispy). Throw chicken broth, wild rice, sauteed vegetables, bacon, cream and thickening (use reserved 1/2 c. broth and mix with flour and pepper) into a pot and cook until rice is cooked and tender. Do not let boil, but keep on low heat. May also use more half and half at the end of cooking to keep it juicy.

CASSEROLE SUPREME

2 (10-1/2 oz.) cans cream of mushroom soup
1 (14 oz.) can evaporated milk
1 sm. can mushrooms, liquid included
1 sm. jar of pimentos
3 c. diced turkey or chicken
1 pkg. sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
1/2 c. chopped green pepper
1/2 c. celery
1/2 c. chopped onion

Mix in pan and top with buttered bread crumbs. Refrigerate for a day and bake at 350 degrees, covered with foil for 1 hour, uncovered for another 1/2 hour.

The Postscript

"Angel's Front Door"

I used to have a friend who lived in Paris.

Paris is expensive. Angel bought the largest apartment she could afford, and it was tiny. But, because it was in Paris, she had a lot of visitors. Friends and family came to see her and, in order to get to her place and back, they would take the subway.

In the subway are photo booths; they have been there for many years. Angel loved the photo booths, and she would drag every person who visited into one to have their photo taken with her. Then she would tape the photos onto the inside of her front door. Soon, the inside of her door was covered with smiling people who had visited her and, in most cases, slept on the couch in her cramped apartment.

Angel died a little more than five years ago.

I was with her shortly before she died. I stayed with her in her apartment when she was very ill and confined to her bed. Then I came one last time when she was in hospice. During this last visit, I stopped by her apartment and saw her door was still covered with photos from all her visitors. There were two recent ones of us.

In both photos, we were wearing oversized sunglasses and oversized smiles for the camera. In one, Angel was wearing a white hat with a jazzy hatband and in the second, she was wearing a bright blue wig because, in both cases, she was on chemo and didn't have any hair.

I took the two photos home with me and framed them. They used to hang in my office before we moved and now, several months after I packed everything up, I found the framed photos and got thinking about Angel's front door.

Part of the reason my husband, Peter, and I decided to buy this apartment was so we could be closer to family and friends and easier to visit. The apartment is now more or less remodeled, and two nights ago Peter's niece, Annie, and her boyfriend, Aaron, came over as our first official guests. Peter made eggrolls and we went out to eat at a restaurant a block away. Annie and Aaron are both in college. We heard about their challenging classes and their hopes for the future and, before they left, I asked if I could take their picture.

The Postscript

I don't have a photo booth, but I bought an instant-print camera. It's like the old Polaroid cameras except it's digital and the photos are sticky on the back.

"You will be the first people on our door!" I announced as I took their picture with my new camera.

We waited impatiently as the camera made little grinding noises and a photo popped out the other end. Aaron peeled the backing off.

"Now what?" he said. "Stick it on the door!" I commanded. And he did.

The next morning, my parents came over for brunch and we repeated the ritual. Last night my sister came over and we did it a third time.

Now I have three little photos, side by side, stuck to the inside of my door.

No, it's not Paris. But I can already imagine our front door, in time, covered with the smiling faces of people who cared enough to come and visit. It will be a reminder of fun times and good conversations and the chance we had to get a little closer.

And it will be my reminder of Angel. Every smile on the door will remind me of hers.

Till next time,

Owen J. Solomonson
March 28, 1937 – November 8, 2021

Owen J. Solomonson, 84, Northwood, passed away Monday, Nov. 8, 2021 at the Lutheran Retirement Home. A memorial service celebrating Owen's life will be held at some future date, when COVID is less of a threat. Memorials may be sent to Waldorf Lutheran College Foundation, Forest City, or to Lutheran Retirement Home, Northwood.

Born March 28, 1937, to John I. Solomonson and Opal A. (Willard) Solomonson, Owen grew up on the family farm near Scarville, and was baptized and confirmed at North Prairie Lutheran Church. He graduated from Scarville High School in 1955, and attended Waldorf College (Class of 1959). For several years thereafter, he lived at home and worked on the farm.

In 1979, Owen moved to Ames, where he joined the maintenance staff at the Iowa Department of Transportation. When he retired from I-DOT in 1999, he moved to Lake Mills, where he assisted his parents in their final years.

Owen's years at Waldorf College left an indelible mark on him. Many of his friends from his Waldorf days became lifelong friends, and he corresponded regularly with a number of them. As a faithful alumnus, he stayed close to his alma mater, visiting often to offer a friendly hello to staff, and to attend numerous events, including alumni gatherings, concerts, award ceremonies, homecoming events, Christmas programs, and commencements. In his home community or wherever he encountered a prospective college student, he would readily extol the value of a Waldorf education.

In 2011, he became a member of the Waldorf Endowment Society. His consistent giving over the years reflected his love for the college, and when he was able to do so financially, he eventually established two scholarships for Waldorf students—the Carol Solomonson Palm Memorial Scholarship, and the John and Opal Solomonson Memorial Scholarship. It was gratifying for him to participate in helping a number of students obtain a college education in this way.

Perhaps one of the proudest moments in Owen's life was in Fall 2015 when he showed up for the annual awards banquet at Waldorf, and to his surprise, he was called forward to accept a plaque for the college's first-ever Waldorf Encouragement Award for his "extraordinary support and love for Waldorf College." For Owen, there was great joy in giving—whether a financial gift, a CD that he thought someone would enjoy, a book worth reading, or a simple word of encouragement.

One of Owen's favorite pastimes dating back to his childhood was word play, and he needed no convincing when someone proposed a good game of Anagrams—which later led to Skip-Across, then to Boggle and Scrabble. He would often come up with rarified words, and was delighted if they also happened to be big counters. His memory was remarkable, and when anyone had trouble recalling details of an event long ago, they knew they could turn to Owen, especially if the details involved particular features on any car involved in the story.

In his later years, some of his favorite reading was found in his second set of encyclopedias. (His first set went to the local library.) He read extensively about cars, and also about the U.S. presidents and other notable leaders. His love for cars traced back to childhood, and to the time that he and his father took apart a Ford, just as a learning experience.

In Fall of 2017, Owen moved from his house in Lake Mills to the Lutheran Retirement Home in Northwood, where he experienced the warmth of a retirement community, developed new friendships, and received excellent care from a Following his duty in the Armed Services, he returned to help Grandpa Hovland on the farm until Grandpa Hovland's retirement. He returned home to work the family farm with his father.

Roger spent several years enjoying his work at Kiester Implement, Kiester, Minn.

Clarine Marjorie McKee Moe
August 30, 1923 – October 28, 2021

Clarine Marjorie (McKee) Moe, 98, Lake Mills, passed away Thursday, Oct. 28, 2021 at the Lake Mills Care Center. Funeral services for Clarine will be held at 11 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 20, at Salem Lutheran Church with Pastor Joel Guttormson and Mr. Kermit Singelstad officiating. Visitation will take place one hour prior to the service at the church. There will be a light lunch to follow. Burial at the Salem Memorial Cemetery will take place at a later date. Memorials may be made to Salem Lutheran Church, 401 S. Lake St., Lake Mills, or to the charity of your choice. Additionally, the family is establishing a scholarship in Clarine's name for graduates going into the teaching profession. Any memorials for this may be made to the Lake Mills Scholarship Foundation, P.O. Box 61, Lake Mills.

Clarine was born Aug. 30, 1923, at home on the acreage that is now the Hartman place, next to the city airport in Lake Mills. She was the daughter of Cora Eddina (Brua) McKee and Melvin McKee. Her parents later purchased the farm and acreage that sits on the north side of Rice Lake.

Clarine was baptized, confirmed, and married at Salem Lutheran Church, and she was a member there her entire life. She attended school in Lake Mills, graduating in 1941, and she attended Waldorf College graduating from teacher training in May 1943.

Clarine's first year of teaching, the 1943-44 school year, was a mixed class of third and fourth grades in Slater. She then came home and taught a very large fourth grade class, 42 students, in Lake Mills in 1944-45. Challenged by such a large class, she would pray each morning before going to work "Dear God, please help me get through this day."

In 1946, she married her high school sweetheart, Walter (Duke) Moe. During their first year of marriage, they lived in Minneapolis, Minn., where she taught at Groveland Elementary School. She missed her hometown and family in Lake Mills, and she and Duke would travel back there almost every weekend. She was invited to again teach in Lake Mills, and they were delighted to move back. A teacher for 42 years, she alternated between first through fourth grades, going where she was most needed.

In 1949, Clarine's husband Duke went to Elgin, Ill., to the Elgin Watch College. They bought Weed's Jewelry, Lake Mills, and operated it as Moe's Jewelry for 12 years.

Clarine and Duke enjoyed almost 64 years of marriage. They were blessed with one daughter, Pamela Christine Moe, whom they adopted in May of 1958.

Family vacations were a highlight each summer. Often, Clarine's parents went along on the car trips out west. In addition to several fun resort vacations 'Up North', the all-time favorite family vacation was a three-week trip to Europe traveling by train to eight different countries, starting and ending in Norway.

Clarine retired from teaching in Lake Mills in 1987. After her retirement, she and Duke wintered for 13 years in McAllen, Texas.

Clarine loved to play bridge. She played weekly with a group of dear friends beginning in the 1940s. Later on, she was pleased to be playing the game with many of her former students who became dear friends. She enjoyed gardening and kept several lovely flower beds around the house and in her backyard. She also delighted in mowing the lawn and tending to the bushes around the yard. Later in life, she was happy to be reading books and doing her 'steps' to stay healthy. Her 'steps' consisted of going up and down the stairway from the kitchen to the basement and back, doing 15 laps each day.

Clarine was a very social person. She enjoyed having coffees and visiting with friends. She also relished gathering with close groups of friends in the evenings, either at each other's homes, or up at The Stables. She was a loving wife, mother, daughter, aunt, cousin and friend. She will be greatly missed.

Clarine is survived by her daughter, Pam (Chuck Merritt); nephew, Lon (Cindy) McKee; niece, Peg McKee (Dean Adams); great-nephew, Bart (Sarah) McKee, their daughter, Maggie, and son, Mac; great-niece, Kelly (Scott) Parrish, son, Bryson, and twin daughters, Isabel and Ashley; and numerous cousins along with other family and friends.

Clarine was preceded in death by her husband, Duke; her brothers: Lewine (Mac) McKee and Wayne McKee; her parents, Cora and Melvin McKee; her grandparents, Edward and Christine Brua; parents-in-law, Manuel and Minnie Sandberg, and Dorothy Sandberg (Ray) Wilson; and sister-in-law, Audy Winden.

Pastor's Corner
RYAN HENKEL, PASTOR
Emmons Lutheran Church

Today is the Feast Day of St. Elizabeth of Hungary. In her short life, Elizabeth manifested such an immense love for the poor, sick, and suffering, that she has become the beloved saint of charities around the world. Elizabeth is the daughter of the King Andrew II of Hungary. She chose a life of charity when a life of luxury could have easily been rightly hers. This selfless choice of a life of charity to others won the hearts of the common people throughout Europe, and even today across the world.

At the age of 14, Elizabeth married King Louis of Thuringia, whom she loved very much. She and Louis had three children: Hermann II, Sophie, and Gertrude. She did not want the fanciness of the royal life, so she sought to become one with the poor and wore simple clothing. Elizabeth devoted herself to a life of sacrifice and service to those in need. Every day she would take food to several hundred of the poorest people in the land who came to her gate for something to eat.

After six years of marriage, her husband died during the Crusades, and Elizabeth was filled with grief. Her husband's family viewed her as squandering her husband's wealth, and they mistreated her and finally threw her out of the palace. When her husband's allies returned from the Crusades, she was returned to her rightful place in the palace, since her son was the legal heir to the throne.

At the age of 21, she joined the Franciscan Order, spending the remaining few years of her life caring for the poor in a hospital which she founded in honor of Saint Francis of Assisi. It was not long before Elizabeth's health started to decline, and she passed away before her 24th birthday in 1231. Her vast popularity resulted in her being sainted four years later and now we celebrate her blessed memory every year in November on the 17th.

There is no doubt that she understood the lesson that Jesus taught when he washed his disciples' feet during the Last Supper. She understood what he meant by Jesus' followers must be ones who serve the humblest needs of others. Because of her royal lineage, Elizabeth could have ruled over her people, but she served them with such a kind and loving heart that she became a blessed saint in their hearts. So just like St. Elizabeth, let this day be a reminder to live a life of charity to those around us in need.

Catalytic converter thefts up 425 percent in Minnesota

The Insurance Federation of Minnesota says Minnesota is at the national epicenter of a surge in the thefts of catalytic converters. The problem is especially acute in the Twin Cities. The statewide total of thefts is up 425 percent. California leads the nation in the theft of these vehicle emission control devices, however, the highest risk for thefts is in the Twin Cities. The most popular vehicles for these thefts are the Toyota Prius, Mitsubishi Endeavor and Outlander. Tips that can help prevent you from becoming victim of catalytic converter theft include:

- Park your vehicle in a garage if possible.
- Consider using motion sensor lights or cameras.
- Install an anti-theft device.
- Etch your VIN or license plate number onto the catalytic converter, or use a high temperature, brightly-colored paint to mark it.

ACT presents "A Christmas Story, The Musical"

Albert Lea Community Theatre (ACT) continues its 56th season with "A Christmas Story, The Musical" at the Marion Ross Performing Arts Center, Dec. 2-12. Based on the motion picture "A Christmas Story" that runs round-the-clock on TV during the holidays, this musical is set in the 1940s in the fictional town of Homan, Ind. It follows nine-year-old Ralphie and his quest for the Holy Grail of Christmas gifts—an official Red Ryder carbine-action 200-shot Range Model air rifle. "A Christmas Story, The Musical," co-directed by Glen and Nick Parsons with musical direction by Barb Lang, will be performed at the Marion Ross Performing Arts Center in downtown Albert Lea on Dec. 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12. Shows start at 7:30 p.m., with the Sunday, Dec. 12, matinee at 2 p.m. Tickets may be purchased over the phone by calling 1-877-730-3144 (service fees apply), online at actonbroadway.com or at the box office. Tickets also are available at the Albert Lea Convention and Visitors Bureau. Albert Lea Community Theatre is a non-profit organization featuring local actors, directors and stage crew who volunteer their time. All performances are at the Marion Ross Performing Arts Center, 147 North Broadway, in downtown Albert Lea. For ticket prices and more information, go to actonbroadway.com or find ACT on Broadway on Facebook.

Q&A: Medicare Open Enrollment With U.S. Senator Chuck Grassley

Q: What do Iowans need to know about Medicare Open Enrollment?

A: Don't dilly dally. The deadline for Medicare recipients to update their health insurance coverage for next year is Dec. 7, 2021. More than 644,000 individuals are enrolled in Medicare in Iowa. During open enrollment, beneficiaries may join or switch from original Medicare to Medicare Advantage. As then-chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I was one of the chief architects to bring Medicare into the 21st century with the first-ever outpatient prescription drug benefit. Today seniors are able to obtain coverage for their prescription medicine by enrolling in Medicare Part D. I advise Iowans to take stock of your benefits to ensure you're getting the best value for the services and care you need. Don't let your current coverage roll into the New Year without taking a look at choices and changes in coverage. For example, your health care needs may have changed and require more or fewer doctor visits, prescription medicines and other medical services. Compare out-of-pocket costs, monthly premiums and benefits among plan providers when comparing supplemental insurance choices. Medicare provides an Annual Notice of Changes every recipient should review carefully to avoid surprises in 2022. Don't assume coverage, costs and benefits stay the same. Do some comparison shopping among plans to determine out-of-pocket costs, including premiums, deductibles, coinsurance and copayments, or whether a specific provider or specialist you may need to see in the coming year is in a plan's network. If cost-sharing is increasing on certain benefits or prescription drugs, does that fit into your budget? New coverage for traditional Medicare begins Jan. 1, 2022.

Q: What should newly eligible Medicare recipients know?

A: It's better to be safe than sorry. Iowans nearing age 65 should do their homework to understand coverage benefits. Soon-to-be retirees should check out Getting Ready to Retire, particularly to avoid the risk of paying penalties down the road. The Social Security Administration determines eligibility for individuals to enroll in Medicare. Always keep information regarding your eligibility in writing. For most people, Medicare Part A does not charge a premium. Generally speaking, Part A covers inpatient care, skilled nursing facility care, hospice care and home health services. Medicare Part B covers preventive services, durable medical equipment, mental health and other medical tests and services to treat or diagnose a medical condition. Medicare recipients have the option to purchase Medicare supplemental insurance for more cost protection for care and services not covered by Medicare. These are called "Medigap" or supplemental insurance. In Iowa 12 standardized plans are available. Medicare Advantage (Part C) offers coverage through private contractors and may include additional benefits, such as vision, hearing and dental services. In 2022, Iowa Medicare recipients may choose from as many as 61 Medicare Advantage plans. The Open Enrollment period for Medicare Advantage is from Jan. 1-March 31. For information on choosing a Medicare Part D drug plan, visit Medicare.gov/plan-compare.

Q: What resources are available for Iowans needing assistance?

A: Iowans may contact a trained insurance counselor through the state Senior Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP). This free, unbiased and confidential service operates to help Iowans navigate coverage options available through Medicare and other health insurance programs. Find a local SHIIP office here. Right now, advertising on cable news networks is saturating the airwaves with information about Medicare open enrollment. It may seem overwhelming to sort through the information and figure out which plan best suits one's budget and health care needs. For objective analysis and plan comparisons, Iowans may access the 2021 Iowa Medicare Supplement & Premium Guide compiled by the Iowa Insurance Division, the state regulator which supervises all insurance business transacted in the state of Iowa.

For more information, contact SHIIP at 800-351-4664. TTY 800-735-2942.

Dave Says

Address the deeper issues

Dear Dave,
 My boyfriend is not very good with money, and he is in a bad situation right now. He has a huge car payment every month, plus about $30,000 in credit card debt. He also lives in a very expensive apartment. He recently quit a really good job because he doesn't like his boss anymore. He has talked about filing bankruptcy, and yesterday he asked if he could move in with me. I love him, but I'm also scared. I try to manage my money well by saving, investing for retirement and staying out of debt. What does this mean for our future together?

Crislyn

Dear Crislyn,
 My guess is the guy's not really bankrupt, but it sounds like he has some maturity and character issues that need to be addressed. I'm not saying things can't change, but this is not someone to move in with or consider marrying anytime soon. You two would have a hard time as husband and wife unless he makes some real course corrections in his attitudes about money and life.

For starters, he needs to get another job, sell the expensive car and find a cheaper place to live. Leaving one position for another is okay, but deciding you just don't like something and walking away from it without another job waiting—especially when you've got bills and a bunch of debt—is just plain irresponsible.

Lots of people identify too strongly with what they drive or where they live. They come to believe those things are indications of their value or worth, and that's sad. It means something inside them is broken, and bankruptcy isn't going to fix that.

All this doesn't mean he isn't basically a decent guy, but it does mean he needs to get control of his finances—and that he's got some soul searching and growing up to do.

—Dave

Friend wants to be a tenant

Dear Dave,
 I own a duplex that has an opening for a tenant, and an old college buddy wants to rent the apartment. He has always been a good friend, but I'm a little worried about the possible effects on our friendship if business is brought into the picture. Do you have any advice?

Justin

Dear Justin,
 You can make this work, but you'll both need to be careful. It's going to take a lot of honesty and maturity from you both.

Doing business with friends always comes with the risk of running into a situation that can damage the relationship. Am I saying never do business with friends? Of course, not. I do a lot of business with friends. I just make sure all the specific requirements and expectations of the business relationship are laid out in clear detail, in writing, and fully understood by both parties before a deal is struck.

Sometimes friends have unrealistic expectations when it comes to doing business together. The friend who's renting may think the friend who is the landlord will give him a pass if the rent is late, and on a dozen other things. The friend who is the landlord may think the renter will be a perfect tenant, because they're friends, and find out the hard way his buddy's a slob who doesn't respect and take care of the property. All these things should be ironed out ahead of time and before the agreement is signed.

You might want to make sure, too, he understands the need to come talk to you if a situation arises where he may be late with a payment, or not be able to pay the rent one month. Most issues like this can be worked out, but he needs to understand—and it's your job to tell him ahead of time, in a kind-but-firm manner—you're not running a charity.

Just be friendly, straightforward and businesslike. If you have to enforce the rules, do it consistently and with fairness. Likewise, if a situation pops up where a little grace and understanding are appropriate, provide those as well.

—Dave

Work Together, and Be Intentional

Dear Dave,
 My husband is a union member and works at a paint factory near our home. His union's current contract will expire in nine months. We have about $27,000 of debt left to pay off, and he makes a little over $80,000 a year. I'm nervous because his slow season is coming up between now and then. During this time, he usually gets about half the hours—and, of course, less money—than he does during the rest of the year. I'm a little scared, even though there hasn't been a strike in the last six years. Do you think we should go ahead and pay off our remaining debt or hold onto every penny in case they walk out?

—Cheyanne

Dear Cheyanne,
 I'm going to tell you something that might just blow your mind: You two can pay off the debt and have some money set aside to live on in that length of time. If you do that, you'll actually be more ready for a strike than ever before. You'll both have to be on the same page financially and do things with a sense of urgency, but right now, I don't think you've got too much to worry about.

The likelihood of them going on strike is pretty low. Chances are, they're just rattling their sabers and talking big to posture for the negotiations. Most factories are behind right now, and the last thing they want is to get even further behind. Everything has been so screwed up by COVID-19 that unless the union demands some completely ridiculous stuff, things will probably work out fine.

I think you guys are going to be fine, Cheyanne. Should you be intentional and thoughtful about the situation? Absolutely. It's always wise to look ahead and plan for the future. Getting that debt paid off and saving up a bunch of cash will give you real peace of mind.
