The Worth County 4-H held their Youth Dairy show at the Charles and Linda Medlang farm, Sunday, June 21. The event was held at the Medlang's due to the COVID-19 cancellation of this year's Worth County Fair. 4-H Alumni Member, Michelle Medlang, coordinated all of the efforts in recruiting members to participate in the cooperative 4-H Dairy Project program. 4-H'ers made numerous visits to the Medlang farm, breaking their calves to lead, washing, clipping, grooming and getting their calves ready for the show. 4-H members pictured (L-R): Teagan Johnson, Jayden Beland, Dalton Logeman, Emma Logeman, Michelle Medlang 4-H Dairy Project Leader, Max Johnson, Tianna Charlson, Maya Johnson, and Dennis Johnson, Worth County Extension Education Specialist.

Lloyd Heggstad, 4-H Silver Lake Husker, entered his poultry projects in the Worth County Virtual Fair this year. Heggstad is a fourth grader from Joice, and a student at LMCS. He chose to raise chickens (broilers and laying hens) and captured two blue ribbons his first year. Lloyd also received Reserve Grand Champion Junior Showmanship

"Lloyd is a hard working youth, who also has an interest in gardening. He planted a huge garden of sweet corn all by himself," said Dennis Johnson, Iowa Extension Ag and Education Specialist.

Lloyd is the son of Ann Heggstad, Joice.

The 2020 Worth County Poultry show was held Tuesday, June 23, via Zoom. Our poultry judge, Bart Pals, held a short educational workshop for exhibitors about Showmanship and how to properly handle poultry.

After the workshop, Showmanship classes were held over Zoom, with some exhibitors demonstrating their handling skills with live birds. Regular classes were judged beforehand, with photos submitted by exhibitors.

Ribbon placings were announced after the completion of Showmanship and exhibitors were able to visit with the judge about their projects.
